THE ATTACK ON FORT DONELSON.

Scene of the Repulse of the Rebels on the Cumberland.

Important Rumors.

Determination of the President to Place General McClellan in Command.

Threatened Resignation of the Cabinet.

A Change to Be Made in Two Weeks.

The Rebel Force at Fredericksburg Only Fifteen Thousand.

Completeness of the Rebel Railroad Communications.

Affairs at Vicksburg.

The Union Transcript has a despatch from Washington which says:

There is no enemy in force at Fredericksburg. Most of the rebel soldiers have been sent to the Blackwater or to Vicksburg, the only force left behind being about fifteen thousand men.

From despatches of other sources it has been ascertained that the rebel railroad communications are perfect. In twenty-two hours the entire army of the enemy can be transported from any point in the South to Fredericksburg, so that they can well afford to spare a great body of their army from the front.

During the past week the President determined upon calling General McClellan to the command of the army again. Upon the announcement being made in a Cabinet council there was a great stir. Secretary Chase at once threatened to resign, as did also the rest of the radical members of the Cabinet. For this and other reasons the President determined to make no change for the present.

Within two weeks, however, there is scarcely a doubt but that the command of the army will be tendered to General McClellan.

The appointment of General Hooker to the command of the Army of the Potomac is merely temporary. It was made against the judgment of the President, and even of the Secretary of War. His soldierly qualities are not doubted, but his ability to handle such an immense body is seriously questioned by his friends.

Nothing of importance is expected from Vicksburg for at least thirty days. It will take that time to complete the canal and to bring our forces effectively to bear against the rebel stronghold. It may be, however, that circumstances may precipitate a battle, but the general impression is that it will require a month at least to capture the place.

Cavalry Expedition to Middleburg and Aldie.

A detachment from Companies H and F of the Fifth New York Cavalry, under Captain Pondell, yesterday made a raid to Middleburg, and at Aldie captured eight of the First Virginia (rebel) cavalry and the postmaster of Little Washington. They were on their way to a ball given to them by the citizens of that place, and were fully armed and equipped. Among them were, it is supposed, some officers, but they refused to disclose their rank. Most of those captured belonged to Captain Money's party, who have been attacking our pickets along the pocket lines. They were excellently mounted, and their horses are barely worth the capturing.

Amusing Anecdote About Her Commander.

The Work on the Canal Going on Vigorously.

Chicago, Feb. 7, 1863.

A despatch from Memphis announces the arrival of the steamer Adeline from Vicksburg. She reports that the ram Queen of the West ran the rebel blockade on Monday morning at daylight. One hundred heavy siege guns opened on the Queen of the West as she steamed past.

A rebel steamer also opened fire on the Queen of the West, which was repulsed.

The rebel steamer was crippled.

The Queen of the West was under fire three-quarters of an hour.

The following is the sketch of the gallant exploit.

Sketch of the Queen of the West and Her Commander.

The Queen of the West is one of the celebrated ram boats organized by the late Colonel Charles Elliot, Jr., and now commanded by his son, Brigadier General (formerly Lieutenant Colonel) A. W. Elliot. The boat was established under the cognizance of the Secretary of War, and was under the orders of that department until very recently, when it was transferred to the Navy Department and placed under the control of Admiral D. D. Porter.

The boat has played an important part in the operations of the United States forces on the Mississippi river from and after the time of the fall of Island No. 10.

When her first career was made known.

The Queen of the West was first brought prominently before the public in the naval engagement above Memphis on the 6th of June, 1862, in which engagement the organization of the boat was seriously wounded, of which wounds she afterwards died. Colonel Elliot, in his report, said: "I ordered the Queen, my flagship, to pass between the gunboats and run down upon the two rams of the enemy."

The Queen struck one of them fairly, and for a few minutes was fast to the wreck, but after separating the rebel steamer sank.

The Queen was then herself struck by another rebel steamer and disabled, but, though damaged, can be saved. In another paragraph he praised "the conduct of the pilot, engineers and military guard of the Queen and the brave conduct of the 'captain.'" In a subsequent report, in speaking of the conduct of the "brave men of the Queen of the West," he stated that the rebel steamers had been sunk on right and immediately by the shocks of the ram.

Another account states that the rebel ram Little Rebel was gallantly run down by the Queen of the West during this engagement, and the rebels acknowledged that the rebel ram Beauregard was struck by the Queen of the West, "when she went down rapidly in deep water opposite Jackson Point." The Little Rebel was run around on the Arkansas shore as soon as she was struck, and was afterwards captured by our forces.

The capture of Memphis followed soon after, and much of the success of this city is due to the gallant operations of the ram Queen of the West. It is justly due to the army to state that they have ever since held this city against every effort put forth by the rebels to recapture it. The river above this city has also been kept clear of rebel craft by the combined action of the gunboats and ram fleet.

The Affair with the Rebel Ram Arkansas.

We next hear of the gallant Queen of the West in the affair of the escape of the Arkansas from the Yazoo river, in July last. When the Arkansas made her first appearance in the Yazoo river, previous to her run into the Mississippi, her opponents were the Union gunboats (Carnegie and Tyler) and the ram Queen of the West. The fight with the Yazoo river was a running one, but on the 10th of July the Queen of the West was ordered to the Yazoo river, and on the 11th she was ordered to the Yazoo river, and on the 12th she was ordered to the Yazoo river, and on the 13th she was ordered to the Yazoo river, and on the 14th she was ordered to the Yazoo river, and on the 15th she was ordered to the Yazoo river, and on the
